

Job Opening for a
Scientific Collaborator Position
Salary Scheme TVL 13

Commencing on 1 September 2013 the Westphalian Wilhelms University of Münster seeks to fill the position of scientific collaborator at the Institute of Missio-logy of its Catholic-Theological Faculty. Incoming director of the Institute: Prof. Dr. Norbert Hintersteiner. The position is non-tenure and part-time, with a 50% of regular work load hours (19 hours 55 minutes) schedule. The position is limited to three years, with a regular probation period of the first six months.

Tasks of the appointee include:

- Teaching workload: 2 hrs per week (usually one course) per semester;
- Academic student counselling and supervision;
- Participation in the coordination of joint teaching and research projects;
- Pursuit of his/her own interdisciplinary research project within one of the institute's main research areas:
 - ❖ Missiology and Mission History
 - ❖ World Christianity and Non-Western Theologies
 - ❖ Interreligious Studies and Comparative Theology;
- Collaboration in the Institute's production of publications.

Requirements:

- Completed postgraduate studies, with a degree in either Theology, Religious Studies, or in other relevant areas of cultural-historical studies and social sciences.

The WWU Münster is committed to particularly welcome more applications of female postgraduates and academics. In case of equal suitability, competence and academic achievements, female applicants will be given preferred consideration, unless reasons of distinct credentials and personal profile are in favour of a male applicant.

In case of equal qualification applicants with disability will also receive preferred consideration for hire.

For specific inquiries and further information prior to application candidates are welcome to address these to the director electronically at imw@uni-muenster.de.

Hard copy applications (only) are invited and must be submitted by 1 June 2013 (postmark) for consideration. Job interviews are intended for 21 June 2013. Complete applications include: Curriculum vitae; brief summary presentation of educational studies and academic profile (copies of relevant exams and supporting documents must be attached); list of publications; outline of a specific research project (3-5 pages); and considerations for career prospects. Applications should be sent to:
